Report

Chief Guest : Dr. J. M. Gnanasekar, Professor, CSE
Target Audience : III year A and B section
Venue : Marine lab
Date & Time : 24/01/2020 , 01.00PM

The Association of Information Technologists (AIT) organized Coding Event 1.0 on the 24th of January, 2020. The welcome address for the event was rendered by Mr. Rajaram, AIT – Coordinator, where he introduced the chief guest Ms. Sivagami V M, Associate Professor, Department of Information Technology, who focused on the importance of problem solving skills and wished the participants the best for the contest.

The participants consisted of students from the departments of Information Technology (IT) and Computer Science and Engineering (CSE). The coding contest, hosted on HackerRank was underway by 1:15 P.M. The contest theme includes various level of problem from the field of Data Structures and Algorithms. Participants were allowed to write code in any language they were comfortable with, which resulted in a level playing field. The participants were forced to wreck their minds and think outside the box for some of the questions.

After 90 minutes of intense coding, winners were announced by Dr. J. M. Gnanasekar, Professor, Department of Computer Science and Engineering. He awarded the certificate to winners and participants. He appreciated the effort taken by the association to conduct such an event and motivated the participants to take part in more such events. The event concluded with the vote of thanks by Mr. Rajaram, AIT – Coordinator.
