REPORT ON INTRODUCTION TO VBA IN EXCEL

Date:28.05.2020

Time: 10.30 – 11.30 AM

Objectives (Maximum 50 words):

The objective of the workshop is targeted to utilize computing techniques like VBA to solve real-world problems. The workshop is meant for those who have never programmed before.

About the programme(Min 500 words):

Microsoft Excel is undoubtedly one of the most popular and far-reaching computing tools throughout both the developed and developing world, utilized in diverse fields ranging from mathematics, accounting, financial analysis, business/administration, engineering, and the sciences.

Visual Basic for Applications (VBA) comes standard with Microsoft Office products, and allows users to customize their Excel spreadsheet environment. Users can record macros and create programmed subroutines that automate user-defined processes, such as filtering data, creating graphs, and consolidating information found within multiple files

The workshop was started by introducing the speaker Dr. P. A. Soloman, Professor in Chemical Engineering, Government Engineering College, Thrissur, Kerala by Dr. N. Meyyappan, Professor & Head of the Department, Department of Chemical Engineering, Sri Venkateswara College of Engineering.

He delivered a lecture on “introduction to VBA in MS Excel” which was inspiring the participants to a greater extent towards the importance & usefulness of VBA in Excel in different applications.

Total of 170 participants were attended out of 251 registered. The participants level varies from students to industry people.

The Valedictory session was presided over by Dr.R. Palani, Associate Professor, Department of Chemical Engineering, Sri Venkateswara College of Engineering.

In Total, the workshop provided the participants a forum to exchange their views and enhance their knowledge in relevance to the topic and fulfilled the objective.

Benefits (Maximum 50 words):

The lecture on “Introduction to VBA in MS Excel” was inspiring the participants to a greater extent towards the importance & usefulness of VBA in Excel in different applications.
