Refocusing the curriculum of Regulation 2018 based on stakeholder feedback aims to advance it for nurturing research and development, fostering innovative technology applications, and promoting entrepreneurship. Faculty feedback underscores the courses' strong relevance to program outcomes and their use of online tools for enhancing participatory learning and practical exposure. Alumni stress the need for curriculum revision to equip students with industry-ready skills. They advocate for the development of professional competence and soft skills through case studies, practical applications, and projects. Additionally, they suggest augmenting the curriculum with courses focused on employability and current technological advancements to promote lifelong learning. They also propose utilizing various assessment tools. Employers appreciate the inclusion of industry-designed elective courses and recommend making internships mandatory.

Action to be taken:

- Suggested for more industrial collaboration in the framing of curriculum and syllabus and in the teaching learning process.
- Recommended to have more focus towards mathematical modeling in courses to promote the placement opportunity of the students.
- Proposed the incorporation of value-added or certificate courses within industry-specific and industry-supported courses.
